From the Special Correspondent of the N. Y. Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 4, 1859.

The trial of Mr. SICKLES commenced this morning, and the scene in the court-room has been intensely exciting. Mr. SICKLES was escorted from the jail on foot by a number of friends and a great crowd of idle spectators. He took position in the prisoner's box, and there remained during the proceedings, exhibiting no unusual marks of agitation, but appeared as one of the lookers-on.

The panel of thirty jurors was exhausted by four peremptory challenges and five jurors sworn. The District-Attorney astonished and shocked every one in attendance by challenging many jurors on the property qualification, as by law a man owning less than $800 being good cause for the challenge. The Court said that each time a juror was asked by the District-Attorney what he was worth it was a challenge. Many incidents of an interesting character have occurred during the day. One witness said he was disqualified in consequence of the relation he bore to accused. On being asked what that relation was, he stated that he too was a married man. A panel of seventy-five talesmen is ordered for to-morrow morning.

Q.

FIRST DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 4.

To-day the trial of the Hon. DANIEL E. SICKLES for the killing of PHILIP BARTON KEY begins, and an intense interest is manifested throughout this community in regard to it.

The applications for admission to the dingy little room in the City Hall, where the Criminal Court is held, have been very numerous, but so miserable are the accommodations that the reporters find great difficulty in securing seats.

As to desks or tables, or other facilities for reporting this important trial, they are out of the question. Imbecility and ignorance are characteristic of the old fogy officials here. Though there might easily have been proper arrangements made by the introduction of tables or temporary desks, the people, or Marshal, or whoever ought to attend to it, have been practicing only the easy plan of how not to do it, and their obtuseness is so extreme that remonstrance is useless.

No more than three or four reporters have been able to get facilities for writing, and those for the Associated Press are not among them, although application was made by them weeks ago. They have, however, ventured on taking seats at the tables set apart for the lawyers.

I visited Mr. SICKLES in prison at a late hour last evening. There is no special hour for excluding visitors. When I called there were three gentlemen with him, among them his father. I had not seen Mr. SICKLES since his arrest, and was hardly prepared to find him looking so well. His manner was pleasantly natural. There was little or no talk about the event in which so deep an interest is felt; at the same time there was no apparent desire to evade the subject. Conversation was kept up on a variety of topics, and the accused bore his part in it with such ease that no one would imagine that he bore a great and abiding grief at his heart.

His little pet Italian greyhound now sat on his knee and now got between the sheets of the bed, placed in one corner of the jailor's room, which is occupied by Mr. SICKLES. The room is furnished coarsely, but still with comfort, and the prisoner appears to make the most of it. The Yankee that wags against the wall in the Criminal Court-room has just struck 10 o'clock, the hour for the assembling of the Court, but the Judge has not yet taken his seat upon the Bench. There is a large crowd assembled in and about the City Hall awaiting the opening of the doors of the Court Room, some hundred persons have already gained admittance through the private doors. All round may be noticed the buzz and bustle of preparation for the great trial. Mr. SICKLES has not been brought into Court yet, but several of his counsel have come in. His counsel are JAMES T. BRADY and JOHN GRAHAM of New-York, E. F. STANTON of Pittsburgh, and MESSRS. SAMUEL CHILTON and DANIEL RATCLIFFE of Washington.

There are several other gentlemen associated with these—among them Mr. THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER, of New-York.

The prosecution is conducted by Mr. ROBERT OULD, Attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia, and it is understood that he will employ Mr. J. M. CARLISLE to aid him—at least application is to be made for permission to do so.

At 10¼ A. M., Judge CRAWFORD took his seat on the Bench, and the crier opened the Court. Soon afterwards the public doors were thrown open and the room was immediately filled.

MESSRS. BRADY and GRAHAM, of New-York, were presented to the Court by Mr. MAGRUDER.

The Judge said that case No. 124, being that of Mr. SICKLES, was set down for to-day, and asked whether the counsel were ready on both sides.

The answer was in the affirmative.

The panel for the petty Jury was then called.

Mr. OULD asked that the witnesses for the prosecution should be called, and all answered to their names but four.

The witnesses who answered to their names were Dr. R. H. Coolidge, Dr. Stone, T. E. Martin, J. N. Reed, J. Gartnell, P. R. Van Wyck, A. Upshur, E. Titdall and J. L. Dudrow.

The absentees were Messrs R. M. Downing, E. Pendleton, F. Doyle and R. Brodhead.

The Judge directed the Marshal to bring in the prisoner, but considerable time elapsed before the order was obeyed.

When Mr. SICKLES was brought into Court, he returned the recognition of several of his friends and acquaintances, and took his seat beside his counsel, but near the railing that separates the lawyers from the audience.

Mr. OULD begged permission, before the arraignment of the prisoner, to state that Mr. CARLISLE was associated with him in the prosecution of the case. This association was extremely gratifying to him and he was sure it would also be agreeable to the Court.

The indictment was then read to the prisoner, charging him, with the usual quantity of legal verbiage, with the murder of PHILIP BARTON KEY, in the City of Washington, on the 27th of February.

He was asked the question, "Are you guilty or not guilty?"

In a clear, firm tone he responded, "Not guilty."

The task of getting a Jury was then commenced.

JOSEPH P. BRIEN was the first juror called.

The Judge said he would put the usual questions to the Jurors touching their impartiality.

Mr. STANTON stated that the defence would be satisfied with that course.

Question by the Judge—Have you at any time formed or expressed an opinion in relation to the guilt or innocence of the accused?

Juror—I have.

The JUDGE—You may retire.

Mr. PHILLIPS, for the defence, proposed to ask the juror whether his opinion was founded on rumor, or on a knowledge of the facts. If merely founded on rumor, and the juror could form a fair judgment, he contended that he was competent. The defence was anxious to obtain a Jury without unnecessary delay. He contended that he was competent.

The Judge permitted the examination in that way.

Q.—Have you formed and expressed an opinion on this case, on rumor or on a knowledge of the facts?

Juror—Merely on rumor.

Q.—Would you be able, on hearing the evidence, to render an impartial verdict?

A.—No, Sir—my mind is biased in favor of the prisoner.

The JUDGE—Stand aside.

SAMUEL H. HOWER was then examined.

Question by the Judge.—Have you formed an opin ion in relation to the guilt or innocence of the accused?

A.—Not that I am aware of.

Q.—Have you an impression upon it?

A.—I have, but I have no prejudice.

Q.—Would you be able to form an impartial judgment?

A.—I would.

The Judge said the Juror was competent.

Challenged peremptorily.

Charles M. Skipwith, sworn—Had formed an opinion in regard to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner; has a prejudice or bias on his mind for or against the prisoner.

Question by Mr. Phillips—Is that bias of so fixed a character that you could not render a fair and impartial verdict?

Answer—I do not know that I could.

The juror was ordered to stand aside.

Joseph L. Savage was next called. He had formed and expressed an opinion.

The juror was ordered to stand aside.

Henry M. Hurdle called. Had never formed or expressed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused; he had no bias or prejudice either way.

Question by Mr. Ould—Have you any conscientious scruples in regard to finding a verdict of guilty in a capital case?

The Juror—I have not.

Question—Are you worth eight hundred dollars?

The Juror—I am not.

Mr. Ould submitted that that amounted to a disqualification.

Mr. Stanton wanted to know whether the prosecution were going to insist on the property qualification.

Mr. Ould—The law requires it.

The Judge remarked that the law of Maryland fixed a property qualification for jurors, but unless Counsel raised the question, the juror would not be incompetent.

John Scrivener was next called. He regretted to say that he had formed and expressed an opinion in relation to the guilt or innocence of the accused. This opinion was formed from the statement of an eye-witness. Ordered to stand aside.

Rezin Arnold was called next. He had not formed or expressed an opinion, had no bias or prejudice in favor of or against the prisoner, had no conscientious scruples about capital punishment, and was worth over $800.

Mr. Arnold was sworn as first witness.

Wm. Dawson was called next. He had not formed or expressed an opinion; has no bias or prejudice in favor of or against the prisoner, and no conscientious scruples. Challenged peremptorily.

James L. Davis was called next. He had formed an opinion to a certain extent from newspaper reports; had no bias or prejudice on his mind; had no conscientious scruples, and is worth $800.

The Judge thought the juror competent.

Mr. Davis was sworn.

Lewis Brooks was called next. He had no impression on his mind that would influence his conduct as a juror; is not biased on either side, but has his sympathies.

The Judge thought that this expression of sympathy rendered the juror incompetent.

Mr. Stanton held that the question here was one of judgment, not of heart, and that sympathies were not a disqualification, unless they went to the extent of influencing the judgment.

The Judge thought that if a man had sympathies on either side, they affected his impartiality.

The juror, on being further questioned, said that he could most undoubtedly render a fair and impartial judgment; he did not know that his sympathies would cloud his judgment if the case were clear.

The Judge thought that the juror's answers amounted to a disqualification, and the juror was ordered to stand aside. Exception was taken.

Lewis Wright was called next. He had partly formed an opinion from the statement of a man who had witnessed the transaction. His mind was not fully made up. Ordered to stand aside.

John E. Neale was called. He had formed and expressed an opinion from what he had read in the newspapers and heard in the streets. He could give a fair and impartial verdict on the evidence; has no impression that would influence his mind, and has no prejudice or bias. Also, had no conscientious scruples and is worth over eight hundred dollars.

The Judge thought the juror competent.

Mr. Neale was sworn.

——Griffin called. He had no impression, bias or prejudice, and no conscientious scruples.

By Mr, Ould—Are you worth eight hundred dollars in property? A.—No, Sir. Disqualified.

Wm. M. S. Hopkins called. Had no impression, bias or prejudice, and no conscientious scruples. Is worth $800. Sworn.

John Smith called. Has no bias or prejudice against any man, and no conscientious scruples. Is worth over $800. Challenged peremptorily.

Thomas B. Bradford called. Had formed and expressed an opinion derived from mere rumor; did not think he could make a fair, good juror. Disqualified.

Edwin Butler called. Had formed and expressed an opinion founded on rumor; thinks he could render a fair verdict on the evidence; had always the opinion that every person who commits wilful murder ought to suffer for it; has no bias or prejudice on either side. Disqualified.

Lawrence Jardella, called. Had formed and expressed an opinion on mere rumor; could not render a fair verdict. Disqualified.

N. B. Brooks and David Hepburn made similar answers and were pronounced disqualified.

Daniel B. Sylvester, called. Had no bias or prejudice and had formed no opinion; had no conscientious scruples, but was not worth eight hundred dollars. Disqualified.

Wm. Bond, called. Has no bias, prejudice or conscientious scruples, and is worth $800. Sworn Bennett Sewell called. Has no bias, prejudice, or conscientious scruples, but is worth less than nothing.

Mr. Stanton wanted to know whether the District-Attorney challenged on that ground?

The Judge—The act expressly states that no man shall be qualified as a juror unless he owns real or personal property worth $800. Counsel might waive objection, however.

Mr. Stanton wanted to know whether the District-Attorney challenged on that ground.

The Judge—The question is a challenge in itself.

Mr. Stanton wished it so understood.

Warren Low, called. Has no bias, prejudice or conscientious scruples. Challenged peremptorily.

Alison White called. Had formed an opinion from rumor, and could not form an impartial verdict. Disqualified.

George E. Kirk called. Has formed an opinion from rumor, and from the relation that he stood to the prisoner, as a married man, he should be afraid to sit as a juror. Disqualified.

James Hullalone called. Had formed and expressed an opinion, and thinks he could not render a fair verdict. Disqualified.

This exhausted the panel, and the Judge ordered the Marshal to summon seventy-five talesmen for to-morrow.

The whole number of Jurors who answered to their names was thirty. Of these four were challenged peremptorily, four disqualified on account of lack of property, seventeen set aside for cause, and five sworn, as follows:

1. Rezin Arnold, of Washington County, farmer.
2. James L. Davis, Washington County, farmer.
3. John E. Neale, Washington City, merchant.
4. Wm. M. S. Hopkins, Washington City, furnishing store.
5. Wm. Bond, Washington City, shoe manufacturer.

The jurors thus sworn were allowed to separate, but were duly cautioned by the Judge.

Mr. Stanton called the attention of the Court to the fact that the prisoner was placed in the box where his counsel had no ready access to him. He asked the Court to order the box to be placed in such a position that Mr. Sickles could confer with his counsel. In point of fact he may as well remain in jail during the trial of his cause, as be where he is now placed.

The Judge could not consent to have the prisoner's box placed beside the lawyers. It was the rule to keep it where it was placed. It might, however, be removed to the railing directly back of the bar, and the Marshal would be directed to keep the way open.

Mr. Magruder submitted that it was not asking too much to have the prisoner confronted with the jurors and his accusers. The accused might conduct his own defence, and certainly, in such a case, would not be forced to occupy such an out-of-the-way place. They would not ask anything for him on the ground of his public position, or on the ground of his profession, but merely what they would ask for the humblest American citizen. In the various States whence the counsel come, the prisoner is always permitted to occupy a seat beside his lawyers. He asked that such facilities should be extended in this case.

The Judge asked whether counsel had ever known a man to be tried for murder who was not placed in the dock?

Mr. Magruder admitted that the prisoner might firs be placed in the dock, but the practice in Virginia, Alabama, New-York and other States was that the prisoner should sit beside his counsel, and have, if need be, facilities for writing.

The Judge had never seen a man tried for murder who was not placed in the dock, and had never read of such a case, certainly not in England. He was not disposed to make any distinction in this case.

Mr. Stanton disclaimed a desire to have any distinction made. They would be satisfied with the arrangement suggested by the Judge.

Instructions to that effect were given to the Marshal, and the Court at 1 o'clock adjourned.

A SOUTHERN CONVENTION.

Call for a Convention of Slaveholding States.

To the people of the Slaveholding States:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: A Committee consisting of J. D. B. DEBOW, of Louisiana; the Hon. JOHN A. QUITMAN, of Mississippi; the Hon. GUY BRYAN, of Texas; the Hon. W. L. YANCEY, of Alabama, and Major W. H. CHASE, of Florida, was appointed at the late Southern Convention in Montgomery, to invite the people of the Southern States to be represented at an adjourned meeting of the Convention in Vicksburgh, Miss., on the 9th day of May next.

The lamented decease of Gen. QUITMAN, created, soon after, a vacancy in the Committee, which was filled with the name of Gen. J. J. MCRAE.

The Committee cannot believe that an argument is necessary, to demonstrate to the people of the slaveholding States the importance of union among themselves, and of mutual good understanding in the organization and discussion of questions essential to their security and repose.

Of this nature are the questions which come annually before the Convention; and whatever diversity of opinion exists in regard to some of them, it cannot be doubted that the light which the discussions elicit, and the conflict of mind and mind which they induce, exercise an influence most salutary, and keep alive a spirit favorable to patriotism.

The presence annually at the Convention of a large number of men of position and character from every section of the South, and of a large representation from the masses of the people, not under the restraints of party, and in nowise obligated to do its behests, and the free interchange of opinion which takes place among them, is itself an important feature of the Convention, and in the absence of every other, should insure its perpetuity.

It is only from such assemblages that, in periods of great public peril, the hopes of the patriot can be realized—as the colonial history of the country evinced.

There is no name honored in the councils or revered in the hearts of the South, from the earliest period of its history to the present, that may not be claimed as authority for everything that is sought by the Convention. From such patriot sources have come warnings of danger, against which the Convention would provide, and appeals for action to which the Convention would respond; and if any of these are now to be found in conflict with it, or interposing discouragements, commonplace, yet sincere men, may find it difficult to understand the peculiar influence in establishing the security and repose of the South, which has been exercised by the recent triumphs of Black Republicanism in every Free State of the North, and its seemingly-secured majorities in the Electoral College.

Fellow-citizens of the South, let us not be lulled into sleep and dreams of security, which experience teaches can only prove to be illusory, for opposition to Slavery has entered into the head and heart of the people of the North, and can alone be met by wisdom and firmness on the part of the South.

The power which threatened us in its infancy and weakness, unless met and rebuked, is not likely to take a step backward in the hour of its highest triumph, whatever to the contrary it may be the interest or the want of nerve in politicians to teach.

There is much for the Convention, however, to do beyond the discussion of political questions, important as are these, for within its purview comes everything that relates to the intellectual, moral, educational and industrial development of the South. To create opinions is to create things.

The Executives of the several States and the various municipal bodies of the South are earnestly requested to send such delegates as will best represent the opinions of the body of the people.

The 9th day of May will be a favorable time to visit Vicksburg, and the citizens of that hospitable community invite to the waters of the Mississippi, the people of the Atlantic States and of the Gulf.

J. D. B. DEBOW, of Louisiana.
JOHN J. MCRAE, of Mississippi.
GUY BRYAN, of Texas.
W. L. YANCEY, of Alabama.
W. H. CHASE, of Florida.

NEW-ORLEANS, March 31, 1859.

Fugitive Slave Case in Pennsylvania.

A telegram from Harrisburgh, published yesterday, announced the arrest of a fugitive slave in that city on the 1st April. The Harrisburgh Telegraph, of Saturday, gives the following particulars:

"Considerable excitement was created, this morning, by the capture of a quiet and inoffensive colored individual, in the Market-house, by United States Deputy Marshal JENKINS, assisted by two other officers. The unfortunate colored man was immediately rushed to the depôt and placed on board the train which was to leave at seven o'clock for Philadelphia, without being afforded an opportunity to say a word to a single friend. The warrant sets forth that the negro, DANIEL DANGERFIELD, formerly known as Daniel Webster, is the property of ELIZABETH SIMPSON, of Athensville, Va. The person arrested has been living for a number of years with the RUTHERFORDS, a few miles from town, bears an unexceptionable character, and has proved himself an industrious man. He has been married about six years, and had two children, both of whom are dead—the last one dying only last Friday. The news of the capture spread rapidly through town; and upon coming to the ears of his wife, she at once fled to the depôt, and arrived just in time to take a last farewell look at her husband, who was sitting quietly in the cars, manacled; and there we beheld a most heartrending scene. The unfortunate wife gave vent to her feelings of sorrow at being thus suddenly separated from her husband. Her piteous cries brought tears in the eyes of many bystanders who had before calmly looked on."

The case was transferred to Philadelphia, where a hearing took place, on the same day, before United States Commissioner LONGSTRETH. The North American says:

"Mr. GEORGE EARLE appeared for the negro, and demanded a postponement until Monday, in order that witnesses from Harrisburgh may be secured. He asked this also because Mr. PIERCE, another of the counsel, was not present. Mr. HOPPER, another Attorney for the prisoner, seconded the appeal, for the reason that he, as yet, knew nothing of the merits of the case. Mr. BENJAMIN BREWSTER, on behalf of the claimant, objected—the Fugitive Slave law rendering the duty of the Commissioner plain beyond all cavil. Were the proofs of identity sufficient, there was nothing to be done—in the opinion of Mr. BREWSTER—but to remand the fugitive to his claimant. After some little skirmishing among the professional gentlemen, Mr. HOPPER asked that Mr. MCKIM, who appeared as the next friend of the refugee, might be permitted to make a statement, to which Mr. BREWSTER cheerfully assented. The Commissioner also acquiesced, but directed that Mr. MCKIM should be first put under oath. Mr. MCK. then stated that he had been informed as to the case by telegraph only a few hours before. In twenty-four hours he had reason to believe that testimony would be forthcoming which would prove the prisoner's title to liberty.

The Commissioner then postponed the case, the prisoner, meantime, being consigned to Moyamensing."

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, April 4.

Before the United States Commissioner, to-day, the case of the negro DANIEL WEBSTER, an alleged fugitive slave from Athensville, Va., is being heard. On conducting the fugitive to the Commissioner's office, this morning, a most exciting scene ensued. Hundreds gathered along the route, and there was every evidence of a forcible seizure being determined on. Marshal JENKINS made such a movement that left no doubt that the first man who interfered did so on the peril of his life. He thus succeeded in safely conducting DANIEL before the Commissioners.

The fugitive's counsel objected to the power-of-attorney of claimant's counsel as a mere transcript from and not a full record of the Court of Lowden County, Virginia.

The evidence for the prosecution closed at 9 o'clock this evening, when the counsel for the defence asked for the adjournment of the case until he had time to consult with his witnesses. Mr. BREWSTER argued that the statute enforced summary proceedings and opposed an adjournment. The public feeling was excited and the law demanded prompt action to shield the claimants from any disastrous results; that was the intent of the law. Finally the Commissioner decided in favor of adjourning the case, for the reason that he was not perfectly satisfied with the identification of the negro, the witnesses not having seen him for seven or eight years.

Adjourned till to-morrow afternoon.

AFFAIRS AT ALBANY.

Brooklyn Water Bill Ordered to a Third Reading—The Health Bill—Protection to Gas Consumers—Quarantine Removal Halts—The Williamsburgh Railroads—Comfort of the City Railroad Men—Highland County, &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Saturday, April 2, 1859.

The Brooklyn water bill was reported complete by Mr. ANDRUS this morning. As amended, the power to substitute a closed conduit for the open canal east of Baiseley's Pond, is struck out. The Water Board is authorized to purchase additional land, and under existing provisions of law, extinguish such additional water rights as may be necessary for the use of the water works, subject, however, to all rights and power now held by the towns in Queens and Suffolk Counties, and to purchase necessary additional materials for distributing the water; the increase of the cost of the works to be met by the issue of bonds not to exceed $1,000,000, unless with the approval of the Common Council of Brooklyn. The control of the water works are to be turned over to the permanent water Board as soon as they are capable of delivering 10,000,000 gallons daily, and as fast as they are completed. The permanent board are to give bonds each in the sum of $50,000, and no Commissioner shall take office until the bond is approved by the Common Council, and if any Commissioner fails to qualify, the nomination is to be made pursuant to the 3d Section, (4th Section in the original bill,) as if no such first nomination or appointment had been made, until the permanent Board is fully filled. The Board is to report a working plan for the ensuing year, (before the 1st Monday of May,) under the several heads of repairs, purchases and laying of mains and pipes, and new work, with an estimate of the quantity of work and supplies to be proposed, the estimated costs, salaries, contingencies, &c. The appropriations of the Common Council for the preservation and repair of the works shall be applied to those objects alone for which the appropriation shall be made, and the expenditure for any object shall not exceed the appropriation therefor. The scale of water rents is to be recommended by the Board and ordered by the Common Council. The "extra rents" are to be established in the same manner. In the County of Queens, dwelling-houses and machine and pump-houses, and the machinery therein on the lands occupied for the water-works, may be taxed in the same manner as against individuals.

Thus amended the bill is likely to go through the Assembly easily, and the thunder of a Senator or two who meant to amend in the Senate, is plucked away from them,

The New-York Health bill, known as "NOXON'S substitute," with a single amendment thrust in by Mr. NOXON, tending to conserve some of Inspector MORTON'S power, is now in the Assembly's Committee on Cities and Villages. The only peril it is now exposed to arises from the feeling that it conflicts with the Omnibus Charter provisions. It might, however, with great propriety, be put through assuming that risk; for its features are certainly an improvement upon the sanitary features of the Omnibus bill. If passed, and the Charter fails, the City has got a good Sanitary Bureau. If both pass, the Omnibus is latest and overrides all inconsistent with it in its predecessor.

About gas. The Gas bill introduced by Mr. SPENCER was about a week ago referred to a Select Committee to report complete. It was really curious to observe how keen the instincts of the gas manufacturers are. The Committee tried industriously to meet in quiet, and away from all outside influences; but at every meeting there appeared from three to five Presidents of Gas Companies. Notwithstanding this, the bill, as this morning reported complete by Mr. LAW, provides for an inspector of gas-metres to reside at New-York, his salary to be paid by the Gas Companies, and he to seal all metres without expense to consumers. The Companies are forbidden to refuse gas to any who desire it, even though the premises are in arrears from a former occupant. The deposit is limited to compensation for two months' supply, and 7 per cent. interest must be paid on deposits. The charge for metres is still permitted.

The Quarantine bill halts, and has been splinted up by the Senate's Committee on Commerce and Navigation. They insist on limiting all the expenditures under the act to $250,000, on associating the Lieutenant-Governor and Comptroller with the Governor in the sale of the Castleton property, and that there shall be somewhere to put the hospitals before selling out the land now occupied. In other words, they were all disposed to put in, not only the amendments which were struggled for in the Assembly, but some more. Thus amended, the bill was reported this morning and the report tabled till Monday. The Staten Island Assessment was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The House was wild as a hawk all the morning. Having early agreed to hold an afternoon session, there were sandwiches between every pair of bills read, half a dozen efforts to take a recess, to adjourn, to fix the time of adjourning for the day, and all that. The Brooklyn Assessment bill, and the New-York Rubber Company bill, were read a third time, and passed—otherwise until 5 o'clock nothing of interest to the metropolis. The motion to forward the bill relative to the canvass of votes in cities (a Brooklyn matter) was, by unanimous consent, made and agreed to. That little resolution, however, had travelled within three days eleven times to the Clerk's desk and back, being ten times refused the necessary unanimous consent, having been offered by five different men, and four times being objected to by the same man. Yet it was utterly harmless, and not a man in the House had any real objection to its adoption. The bill providing against unsafe buildings in New-York, the City Hall, the New-Utrecht Health and the State Arsenal bills were reported complete. The following were sent to the Committee of the Whole: The Northwestern Dispensary, Repealing the People's Loan and Relief Company, the South Pacific Steamship Company, (amended from the Senate bill so as to require 25 instead of 5 per cent. on the capital stock to be paid in before the Company can go into operation,) and the act "in relation to vessels."

The majority of the Select Committee reported IRA BUCKMAN'S Grand-street Railroad bill complete, the two members from the district through which the City part of the road runs dissenting therefrom.

A happy company of New-Yorkers went down this morning—the host that had been so troubled about the City Railroads. After the victory of last evening, when by a vote of 66 to 15, the three "sure things" were reported by the Grinding Committee as fit to be sent to Select Committees to report complete, they felt the need of going to town to cool off and recover breath.

No leaves of absence were granted to-day, though scores were asked. Mr. MEEKS petitioned earnestly for leave to Mr. LAWRENCE, who, he said, had gone down to attend Town meeting, being naturally very anxious to elect a Democratic Supervisor. But the majority would not relent.

The project of dividing Highland County fell in between the stones of the Grinding Committee, and was crushed to powder. The friends of the new County are very indignant, and, to tell the truth, more independent men than ever before. Nothing so much quickens a member's conscience as to have his constituents murdered, after which he takes no counsel of friends or foes, but goes in for the right with a holy recklessness of Mrs. Grundy. The friends of Highland affirm with compressed lips that the only earthly reason why the new County cannot be created is because Mr. SEWARD is opposed to it; and yet they have a reserved hope that the powdered fragments of their bill will be gathered together, rendered shapely and vitalized. In the depth of their despair they desperately hope that it will become a law before the 15th of April, and I believe it will, as I am GLAUCUS.

The City Railroad Select Committees—Preparatory Medical School and the Insurance Department—Proxy-Voting in Religious Societies—Abolition Filibustering—Perils of Legislation—Brooklyn Sewerage—Tunnel and Roving Railroad Charters, &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, April 4, 1859.

If your readers were all acquainted with the gentlemen named below, the following items would be intensely interesting. If they are not acquainted it may be necessary simply to state that the railroads are safe in such hands. The Speaker has named the following Select Committees to report complete:

On the Seventh-avenue (Parallel) Railroad—Scholefield, Stewart, Riley, Batcheller and Miller.

The Preparatory Medical School was sent to a Committee of its friends; the Insurance Department Act to a Nursing Committee, with Mr. OPDYKE at its head. The River street change was reported at its head. The Williamsburgh Fire bill hangs fire, complete. The Williamsburgh Fire bill hangs fire, Mr. MESEROLE, of the Select Committee refusing to report complete except with some amendments that would not at all suit the friends of the original bill.

The bill permitting the members of Religious Societies to vote by proxy coming up, Mr. SPENCER moved to recommit and kill. Mr. ANDRUS, of Kings, earnestly defended the provisions of the bill, expounded the necessity of it, showed how it would operate upon the future fortunes of the Bible and Tract Societies, and opened the eyes of all to the position of affairs. The motion to recommit was promptly voted down, and the bill carried—69 ayes to 21 nays.

A bill enabling Ontario county to build a Court-house and rent part of it to the United States for the use of the Federal Courts coming up, Mr. HUTCHINSON moved to recommit it, with instructions to insert an amendment, to the effect that no trials should ever take place in the Court-house for the surrender of fugitive slaves. The motion failed, and the bill squeezed through with barely the requisite number of votes.

Aptly illustrating the perils of legislation is the story that a gentleman from Rochester likes to tell of his own experience, though at his own expense. He brought here, early in the session, a revised charter for a Savings Bank, the special design of which was, to extend the character of the securities tufted, plaided or striped, ombre, chine and chints patterns—in fact ribbon in every conceivable style, and of every quality of fabric, are the great "institution" of the day. Ribbon is the universal trimming for every visible article of ladies apparel, and that in such superabundance, that in many instances it appears to be actually a part of the original fabric. For instance, sleeves and collars no longer are composed of lace and embroidery; ribbon, in every case, form a full third, and often more, of the material. Dresses are trimmed with them in the sleeves, body and skirt; often, as we have hinted above, until it is scarcely possible to tell whether the fabric of the dress trims the ribbon or the ribbon is meant to ornament the dress. Mantles, scarfs, dresses of all sorts, have either ribbon or strips of the material imitating ribbon as a finish; and the exercise and capes of illusion for in-door full dress form no exception to the general rule.

FROM FRANK LESLIE'S
NEW FAMILY MAGAZINE AND GAZETTE OF FASHIONS, PAGE 374.
"STYLES FOR THE MONTH OF APRIL.—RIBBONS! RIBBONS!! RIBBONS!!!
It is almost a matter of course that so popular a style of trimming should exhibit unusual excellence. The Rubans Dahlia, of which we spoke last month, are introduced especially at LICHTENSTEIN'S, No. 387 Broadway, in still greater variety, both of color and make. Some appear to be plaited at each edge, some at one only, or in the centre. One pretty novelty has a rich figured band at one edge, with moss tufts here and there.
Robes are almost always with double skirts, and frequently in the tunic form. The bodies of morning-dresses are rounded in front and finished with a band and buckle. Evening dresses are made with a long point, and with three skirts, the two lower ones each being run along the edge like a puffing, the third skirt to the knee caught up at intervals and fastened with bows of ribbon, with long streaming ends. The sleeves are composed of large puffs with a knot of ribbon and streamers on each shoulder. This mode of trimming the upper part of the low body only with bias or puffing, is peculiarly becoming to almost every figure, giving an appearance of fullness and width across the chest, without spoiling the symmetry of the waist, as berthas very generally do."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The trial of Mr. Sickles for the murder of Philip Barton Key, commenced yesterday at Washington—or rather the case was called on yesterday, and the attempt to obtain a jury was commenced. A panel of thirty was exhausted, out of whom but five were sworn—four of the others being peremptorily challenged, and twenty-one being set aside for cause. The District-Attorney insisted upon the property qualification of eight hundred dollars, required by the Maryland law, and four were set aside as being too poor in worldly means. A panel of seventy-five talesmen has been ordered for to-day, and the probability is that out of these a sufficient additional number will be obtained. The court-room yesterday was crowded to excess, and the scene during the challenging of the jurors was intensely interesting and exciting. The accused was not allowed, as is usual in the New-York Courts, to occupy a seat by the side of his counsel, but was confined to the prisoner's dock, and will continue so to be throughout the trial.

The steamship Indian, now in her thirteenth day out from Liverpool, and due at Portland, had not been heard from at 1½ o'clock this morning.

By the arrival of the Cahawba we have Havana advices to March 30. The people were rapidly leaving the city to avoid the yellow fever. The Cahawba brings several members of the Maretzek Opera Company, the remainder coming shortly. Among the recent arrivals at Havana was the Prussian man-of-war Gefion, Captain Donner, with Prince Adalbert, of Prussia, on board. The Gefion sailed on the 30th ult. for this port.

We have advices from Rio Janeiro to Feb. 19. There was no news of importance. Coffee was inactive. Freights to the United States low.

The engineering party, charged with the survey of the Tehuantepec Isthmus, has been broken up by a misunderstanding between its chief and his assistants. But three of the original party remain on the ground, the others having returned to Mexico. Only a partial survey will be made.

In the State Senate, yesterday, the bill regulating the rates of wharfage in New-York and Brooklyn was ordered to a third reading. The matter of Mr. Wetmore's claim to the seat vacated by Mr. Mandeville, was made the special order for to-day. The bill to extend the provisions of the Exemption law was passed. The bill to incorporate the New-York Astronomical Observatory was passed. In the Assembly nothing of special importance occurred during the morning session. In the evening, considerable business of interest was done, a telegraphic summary of which will be found elsewhere.

Gov. Chase, of Ohio, has replied to the recent insulting demand of the Ohio Senate for information regarding the Treasury frauds, and for explanations of his course in withholding the information, by stating he has already communicated all the facts which came to his knowledge, and by administering a rebuke to the Senate for the disrespectful tone of its resolutions.

The Legislature of Maine have appropriated a million and a half acres of public lands, and have authorized the city of Bangor to loan its credit to the amount of five hundred thousand dollars, in aid of the Aroostook and the European and North American Railroads. There is also to be a trunk-line from Bangor to New-Brunswick, with a branch line to Aroostook. The measure passed by very decided majorities.

The Connecticut Election, which took place yesterday, seems to have resulted in a pretty general success of the Republicans. Returns received up to a late hour last night indicate the election of all four of the Republican candidates for Congress, together with the Republican State ticket and a Republican majority of the Legislature. The returns, however, are not sufficiently full to enable us to decide with certainty.

A fugitive slave excitement occurred in Philadelphia yesterday. The negro, Daniel Webster alias Dangerfield, who was arrested in Harrisburgh on Saturday, under a warrant which claimed him as a slave belonging to Elizabeth Simpson of Athensville, Geo., was taken before United States Commissioner Longsheath for examination. An immense crowd gathered in the streets while the alleged fugitive was being conveyed from Moyamensing Prison to the Commissioner's Office, and demonstrations of a rescue were made; but the United States Marshal succeeded in keeping his prisoner in custody. The evidence for the prosecution before the Commissioner occupied until 9 o'clock last night, when an adjournment was decided upon.

The various Indian tribes on the Plains, according to recent advices from the West, are about engaging in a general war among themselves. The Minnecougues appear to be the leading tribe among the belligerents, and the Cheyennes, Arapahoes and Crows will also take part.

Considerable business of importance was transacted at the meeting of the Board of Councilmen held last evening. Several communications were received from the Mayor. One enclosed a memorial from the Chamber of Commerce asking for a site of ground on the Battery whereon to erect an Observatory for meteorological and astronomical purposes. The memorial was referred to the Committee on Lands and Places. Another communication enclosed the report of the financial affairs of the Cooper Institute for the past eight months. It shows a balance in the Treasury of $625 53. The entire cost of the building thus far, exclusive of the site, has been $427,956 72. The contested election case came up for consideration. Both the majority and minority reports were discussed at length. Serious charges are made against Mr. McAdam in the latter report. The whole subject was indefinitely postponed after a long debate.

Mr. Ketchum presided at the meeting of the Whig General Committee last evening, and made remarks upon the comments of the Press upon the recent speech delivered by Ex-Governor Hunt at Hope Chapel. It was reported that encouraging communications had been received from various parts of the country.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday held a short session, directed that several bills of little importance be paid, and then adjourned to the 18th inst.

The movement for higher wages has reached the house-painters. At a meeting held at the Central House last evening, they determined to demand $2 per diem. Through some mistake in securing a room, the proposed meeting of the metal-roofers proved a failure.

Samuel McKee, a stage-driver, attempted last night to shoot a man named Cooper, proprietor of a restaurant in Spring-street, for alleged illicit intercourse with his wife. Cooper grappled with him, and succeeded in wresting his pistol from him. The police then interfered, and McKee was looked up. Cooper did not deny the conduct which led to the assault.

The pugilistic gathering at Hoym's Theatre, last evening, at which Morrissey and Heenan had a set to, was very large. Everything passed off pleasantly.

Recorder Barnard opened the April term of the Court of General Sessions yesterday with a calendar unusually heavy and containing cases of more than ordinary interest. The Grand Jury will be impanneled to-day. Two cases yesterday were disposed of—that of John Mansfield, for burglary, and Kelly, for grand larceny.

The Charter Election in Brooklyn takes place to-day. A Mayor, Supervisors, Aldermen, Assessors, and other officers are to be elected.

The Grand Jury of the King's County Court of Oyer and Terminer, recently made a presentment, in which reference was made to the condition of the Child's Nursery, at Flatbush. According to their representations, there is a great want of proper ventilation in the building appropriated to the purpose, through improper construction and a want of proper attention. The children are in consequence unhealthy—affected with sores and emaciated, and the mortality among them is very great. The building occupied as a "Truant Home," it also presented as unfit for the use, though the institution itself is declared to be well managed.

Cotton, yesterday, opened heavy, with sales of 3,000 bales, including 2,600 bales in transitu. Breadstuffs were lightly dealt in, though prices favored buyers. More activity was reported in Hog Products. Coffee and Rice were in good request. Sugars and Molasses attracted less attention. Common Resin and Wilmington Tar were in fair demand. Freights were quiet.

A New Southern Convention.

Our Southern fellow-citizens continually insist upon it that it is we of the North who provoke all the discord which now vexes the union of the States. They point to our Abolitionist Conventions, to our Anti-Slavery journals, to our Free-Soil parties, as the perpetual instigators of ill-blood and hostile feelings between the two great sections into which the country is divided by its social institutions. It is the fanatics of the North who are putting asunder what race and history had joined together. The South is the smitten, not the smiter. Slavery is standing, and always has been standing, on the defensive, they tell us, and nothing would be easier than for us to dwell together as brethren in unity if the North would but accept the Union as a bond of obligation, and revere the Constitution in all its mysteries.

We do not mean to deny that in all this crimination there is a grain of truth. We admit that the well-taught, well-conducted, well-bred Southern planter who received his acres with his negroes from his father's hands, or earned them by his own honorable industry; who has tried through a long life to do his duty by his dependents as by all men, and esteems himself not unjustly an honest and legal citizen, may be excused for taking it as a great impertinence and very outrageous assault that a neuralgic shoemaker, or a boisterous tinker, or a dyspeptic young clergyman flown with classic self-conceit, in some remote New-England village, should fall upon him and his, upon his kindred, his friends, and his people, with fluent vituperation, denounce him as a covenanter with hell, and a minister of death, and put him morally under the ban of the universe.

A very considerable show of indignation is simply natural in any man, or body of men, subjected to the intrusive prophesying of a self-constituted spiritual police, and deluged with the cheap damnation of a gratuitous philanthropy. If the noisiest leaders of the Northern crusade against Slavery were all as wise as nine-tenths of them are silly, and all as magnanimous, simple-hearted, and honorable, as nine-tenths of them are self-seeking, self-indulgent, and malignant, their clamor would still fall harshly enough upon the Southern ear. In the actual circumstances of the case, the wilful and contemptible uproar of the most extreme Southern "agitators" only conceals a very real, inevitable, and respectable wrath in the breasts of multitudes of honest men and good citizens at the South.

But in all that the North has offered of defiance and of insult to the South, the North has never acted collectively and as a North against the collective South. The North has never assumed the attitude of an imperium in imperio, and challenged the South to draw and defend herself. The notion of a Northern Convention to define the Northern position, as such, and to take steps for "invading the repose and security" of the South, has never yet entered into the brains of any body of Northern men, respectable enough in point of numbers or intelligence, to provoke a serious notice from any Northern community. Still less has Northern Executive ever dreamt of appointing delegates to a Northern Convention, for the avowed purpose of organizing a power hostile to the South. All this, on the contrary, the South has done and done repeatedly. All this it is doing now again. Citizens of five Southern States, nominated by a Convention of conspicuous Southern men, once more "fulfill their duty" by calling upon the Governors of the Southern States, and the Southern people generally, to appoint representatives to a Southern Convention, as to one of "those assemblages from which, only in times of great public peril, the hopes of the patriot can be realized, as the colonial history of the country evinced."

These "Conventions" have been laughed at long enough. The quizzical solemnity of their usual proceedings, the stimulating quality of the intellectual cocktails and juleps administered by them to the Southern mind, the hopelessly frantic character of their political propositions, the downright drivel of their commercial theories, have all excited the abundant merriment they were so well calculated if so little designed to evoke. But they merit more serious attention from all good citizens in all sections of the country, and especially in the South. We can match the individual rigmarole of any individual Southern simpleton at the North. When the New-York Tribune shouts to the "Men of Connecticut to be up and doing, for the watch-fires of liberty are blazing on the hill-tops," and rallies its legions to the fray, Northern men may well excuse their more impetuous kinsmen of the Gulf for bringing out the revolutionary field-piece and unfurling their banner to the breeze. Nonsense of this sort is bounded by no imaginary lines, and flourishes in the most various soils.

The specific, deliberate sectional organization of a number of States into a separate Diet or Congress of their own, with the avowed intention of arming them against another section, is, however, a step in American history which we owe to the South alone. If Conventions of this sort had sprung up in the fever of specific political excitements only to die away again with returning peace, they might well have been overlooked. But they have become a chronic disease. They certainly have done nothing for the social or commercial welfare of the South. They have not built a Southern railroad, or a Southern ship; they have not written a Southern book, or founded a Southern college; they have not produced so much as a patent hair-brush or an improved cork-screw. Their only fruits have been, their only fruits to all appearance always will be—political. They are Conventions of offence against the North; Conventions for inflaming the Southern mind into the belief that the North means and longs to assail Southern rights on Southern soil; Conventions for aggravating every perilous feature in our present political condition which true patriots wish to see subdued; and for ripening all the mischief which false patriots even still affect to deprecate and to dread. If these be not their objects, then they are certainly the most astonishing exhibitions of emptiness and imbecility ever inflicted upon an astonished world. If these be their objects, it becomes all right-minded Southern men to set the brand of Southern ridicule and condemnation upon them firmly and at once.

The Democratic Rupture.

The Charleston Mercury, discussing the steadily increasing tendency of political parties towards a purely sectional organization, expresses some doubt as to whether the Charleston Nominating Convention will ever meet, and says that if it does, the Democratic Party can only be properly represented in it by Southern delegates. The whole party in the North, it alleges, is tainted with Anti-Slavery heresies or prejudices, and is utterly averse to supporting the slaveholding States in the assertion of their rights. It cites the refusal of the Northern Democracy to sustain the Lecompton policy of Mr. Buchanan, and their general desertion of his Administration in support of this opinion. Meantime, it says, the Southern Democracy is gradually crystallizing to meet this hostile organization;—and it looks forward confidently to a purely sectional contest at the next election.

This prospect is one which none but avowed disunionists could be expected to regard with much complacency. Yet there is good reason for apprehending that the coming Presidential election may assume this shape. There can be little doubt that the Charleston Convention will be called on to reaffirm the Popular Sovereignty platform of 1856. Mr. Douglas has staked his political existence on the maintenance of this principle by the Democratic Party. He took this ground in Congress, and in the Illinois canvas: and has taken occasion repeatedly since—in speeches at Memphis, New-Orleans and Washington—to declare his adhesion to it, and to the entire non-intervention of Congress in the domestic affairs of either Territories or States. In a letter written recently, apologizing for not aiding personally in the Connecticut canvass, he says:

"The integrity and ascendancy of the Democratic Party can only be maintained by an explicit and unequivocal recognition of the fundamental principles of popular sovereignty and non-intervention by Congress with Slavery in the Territories, as well as in the States, as it was explained and understood in the great contests of 1854 and 1856."

This declaration covers more than the canvass in Connecticut. It is intended to be applied to the Democratic Party of the Union,—and Senator Douglas, with the great mass of the Northern Democrats, will insist upon the adoption of this principle by the Charleston Convention. The first thing which that body may expect to encounter will be a resolution reaffirming this doctrine "explicitly and unequivocally." How will it be met? Unless all existing indications of the temper of the Southern Democracy are deceptive, it will be rejected peremptorily and decisively. In and out of Congress, the doctrine by which Senator Douglas has determined to stand or fall has been repeatedly repudiated by the leading men of the South. Not only Carolina and Mississippi, but Georgia and Virginia, demand the intervention of Congress to protect slave property in the Territories against territorial law. In one of the last Senatorial debates of the last session, Mr. Mason, of Virginia, affirmed this position of the South with characteristic superciliousness and energy. He declared to Mr. Douglas, on the floor of the Senate, that the party which should go before the South with the doctrine of popular sovereignty, and of the right of the Territories to exclude Slavery, would fail to carry "not only a single State, but a single vote, from Mason & Dixon's line to the Gulf of Mexico."

With all allowance made for the rhetorical exaggeration, this statement of the Virginia Senator substantially embodies the proclaimed determination of the Southern Democracy. If these determinations are to govern the Southern delegations in the Charleston Convention, it is not easy to see how that Convention can possibly make up a platform on which any Northern Democrat would dare to take his stand before a Northern constituency.

The people of the North have always been inclined to assert the right and the duty of Congress to legislate against Slavery in the Territories. Under existing circumstances, however, they are mainly willing to acquiesce in the principle of Popular Sovereignty, and to leave the people of the Territories to decide for themselves whether Slavery shall be admitted or excluded. But as for assenting to Congressional legislation in favor of Slavery in the Territories, they will never do it under any conceivable circumstances; nor dare the Democracy, in any section of any Northern State, avow itself in favor of such action.

It is probable, therefore, that the Charleston Convention, if held, will only divide the party. The two-thirds rule will render it extremely difficult to select a candidate, and the disagreement upon the principle of Congressional intervention will render it impossible to agree upon a platform. There will be a split, and probably two candidates. A strong effort will be made, and is even now in progress, to avoid the rupture by nominating Mr. Guthrie or some candidate of similar position,—not identified with either section. But the hostility of sentiment has already gone too far to render such a compromise feasible. The issue has been made, and the fate of the most prominent Democratic leaders, in both sections, depends upon its decision.

It is needless to say that such a rupture will give an easy victory to the Republicans. Even if the American and old Whig parties should refuse to coöperate with them, as they did in 1856, they could not weaken them sufficiently to prevent their having a very decided plurality in every Northern State.

Election in Brooklyn.—Our neighbors across the water elect a Mayor to-day. We think it quite probable that very few even of themselves are aware of the fact, for it has excited less attention than any similar contest of equal importance for a long time. Ex-Senator Cross, a gentleman of ability, integrity and experience in the public service, is the Republican candidate in opposition to Mayor Powell. We do not know that any special principle is involved in the contest, beyond the general one of party politics,—though there are local questions of considerable importance to be affected by the result.

The Results of the Paraguay War in a Commercial Light.—Even assuming as correct the published anticipations of Commissioner Bowlin, who believes that the Paraguay difficulty will be amicably settled, there is a complete counterpoise to the pleasure created by such an announcement in the intelligence that "all the Republics in the vicinity of Paraguay are against the United States in their views of the point in dispute." There is no part of the world in which American commerce more requires the establishment and fostering of amicable relations than in that portion of South America. It is of vital importance to the interests of the large numbers of merchants and shipowners who are connected with the trade between the United States and the vast extent of country lying between Brazil and Patagonia, that the utmost facilities should be afforded to the speedy opening of an extended commercial intercourse. At present, the balance of trade with the States on the Plata, Paraná and Uraguay, is heavily against us. We import largely of hides, skins, horsehair, &c., from those countries, through the ports of Monte video and Buenos Ayres, beyond which points we have little or no communication with the numerous populations of the Riverine Republics. Our exports, in exchange for the produce which we receive through these places, are, comparatively speaking, extremely light. Some flour and a very few domestics are sent thither; but the bulk of our imports of hides and hair from the River Plate is paid for by bills of exchange on London. The reason of this inadequacy of export was originally our exclusion from the ports of the Argentine Confederation, until Urquiza threw them open to us in 1853; but ever since that time they have not grown into anything like importance. We have yet to secure our footing there, and to introduce the thousand and one articles of our produce and manufacture which would be useful to those peoples, and which would go far to equalize the annual amount of our imports and exports. But, to do this, we must push our commerce into the interior, under auspices which will be advantageous to us without being inimical to the prejudices of the ignorant masses whose trade we desire to obtain.

The Paraguay quarrel, then, is unfortunate for our commerce in many points of view. The subject in dispute is, of itself, sufficiently trifling, nor is the justice of the case as clearly and decisively on our side as we would wish any quarrel to be in which the national character is involved. We have gone to Paraguay rather for the purpose of forcing upon that State an acknowledgment of the superiority of American caprice than of acting upon any well understood appreciation of native law and usage. The commander of the Water Witch resolved on overriding the authority of Paraguay under cover of an authority from Corrientes, and insisted on passing through a channel which was exclusively reserved for the use of the Government; and his vessel was fired at in consequence. We have gone to Paraguay, accordingiy, to avenge the insult thus provoked by our flag, and to dispute with a paltry Power a right which is most jealously insisted on by all the States in that quarter of the world. It is no wonder then, that the Republics in the vicinity are "against us in the quarrel," as a recent dispatch from Washington significantly reports.

The harm which any of those States are able to inflict upon us in a belligerent sense, is of course so small as to be unworthy of serious consideration. But the impression upon the minds of those people, who have all the prejudice of the Spanish character,—that we are arrogantly devoting our power to the destruction of their rights—will do much to retard the development of American commerce in that quarter, and to throw the trade into the hands of our rivals. We shall gain little glory by humbling Paraguay;—we may lose a great deal by the amusement. And on the whole we shall find that it would be better for us occasionally to furnish the commanders of our exploring steamers in foreign parts with instructions to respect the domestic laws of the countries whose waters they explore.

Scarcity of City Lots.—Some enthusiastic statistician has been making an estimate of the number of City lots which can hereafter be brought into the market, and the result of his calculation is that not more than thirty-five thousand can be added to the number now available for building purposes. Giving five inhabitants to a lot, it will be seen that New-York is in imminent danger of being entirely built up in the course of a very few years, when a City lot will not be purchasable at any price. There is but one city in the Union that bids fair to be entirely built up and finished, and that one is Boston. The metropolis of New England is, in fact, already a finished city; there is not a vacant lot left within the City limits, except a little patch of land, which has been made by filling up an elbow of the sea known as the Back Bay. When anybody wants to build a new house in Boston, it is first necessary to pull down an old one.

But we are not yet quite driven to such straits in New-York. There are still a good many building lots to be had besides the thirty-five thousand yet to be brought into market. The time cannot be very distant, however, when this entire Island will be built upon, and the vocation of the speculator in City lots will be gone. This would be an alarming prospect for New-Yorkers if their City were built like Venice; but as there happens to be plenty of land in the vicinity, with every desirable facility for crossing the rivers which separate us from the main land, New-York has already overflowed into the surrounding country to an extent which could never have been anticipated by the last generation, and this overflow will be much greater during the next ten years than it has been during the last. The facilities for going out of town have increased to so great an extent, that it is much more convenient for business men to reside in Westchester and Connecticut, than it was for them to live on Murray Hill but a few years ago. The enormous prices to which speculators have raised the value of City lots, the frightful taxes which incompetent and dishonest City officials have subjected our property-holders, and the wretched condition in which our streets are kept, will send, as they have sent, hundreds of thousands of population into the neighboring towns and villages that would otherwise have been retained here. Only the very wealthy and the very poor will be able, in a few years, to reside in the City, the great ass of merchants, mechanics, clerks, and middle men whose occupations will per[mit] them to keep their families out of the C[ity] will desert us for the suburban regions wh[ich] surround us on all sides. Speculators in C[ity] lots who base their operations on the progressive expansion of the City for the past twenty years, should bear in mind the circumstances of the temptations to an out-of-town residence which have already deprived New-York of nearly half a million of inhabitants. The growth of Brooklyn is only an indication of what may be anticipated on the New-Jersey side, and since the Water Works have got fairly in operation in our sister city across the East River, we may anticipate a more rapid growth of that already populous suburb than it has yet exhibited.

More Chivalry.—A Savannah paper states, with "regret to have to record such unpleasant occurrences, but greater regret that they are not without provocation," that

"Last week it became known that a man by the name of Hazzard, from Providence, had written an account of the recent sale of the Wanderer to a Rhode Island paper, in which false statements were made, reflecting upon Mr. C. A. L. Lamar and others. Mr. Lamar took the earliest opportunity, after learning his whereabouts, to call on Mr. Hazzard. Demanding of him whether he wrote the letter attributed to him, and receiving an affirmative answer, he promptly slapped him in the face with the back of his hand. Mr. Lamar then stated to Mr. H. that, as he had slandered him in the public prints, he had resented the insult by a blow, and was ready to give him any satisfaction he might demand, but that he must leave the city by the next train, which he accordingly did."

It will, no doubt, be news to the public to learn that the power of banishment from the City of Savannah, if not from the State of Georgia, is vested in Mr. C. A. L. Lamar, who, we believe, has never been elected to such an office. It will be still greater news to those gentlemen who uphold the "Code of Honor," that it is chivalrous to follow up an offer of satisfaction for a slap on the face by ordering the aggrieved party to quit the scene of the insult and the place where the "satisfaction" would be obtainable. To the minds of most people, however, the slapping of a man's face for having written "an account of the recent sale of the Wanderer to a Rhode Island paper," will suggest more of the rowdyism of the bully than of the chivalry of wounded honor.

Connecticut.—The election yesterday in Connecticut seems to have been nearly all one way. The Republicans have carried the State ticket, all the Congressional Districts, and the State Legislature. Our Southern brethren will see in this fact additional evidence of that steady advancement of the North towards Anti-Slavery sentiment, from which they apprehend so much disaster to the country.

Dramatic.

Miss Jane Davenport kept her word last night with an admiring public by welcoming them to a regenerated house, new properties, elaborate costumes, and a thrilling new play in five acts, done from the French of Scribe into the English of Mr. O. S. Leland.

The "New Metropolitan Theatre" has been famously furbished up since those last dwindling days of the Burtonian dynasty, in which it had become a very "Anatomy of Melancholy." Save for the fault upon which we have sufficiently animadverted, and which is altogether past psaying for of its disproportionate width, and the effect thereby produced of extravagant shallowness, the salle of this theatre is most agreeably elegant. It has been admirably retouched and re-painted with a specific view to the approach of Summer, in a style which combines a refreshing appearance of coolness and cleanliness with brilliancy and comfort. The stage properties, so far as they were last night tried by the play of the "Czarina," have an air of bran-new-ness with which it would by ungracious to quarrel, but which was abundantly compensated for by the extremely-antiquated character of the said play itself. The "Czarina" is one of those plays which make you feel that you have seen it a thousand times before you reach the end of the first act. Whether it is written in blank verse or in prose it was of course impossible for us to decide, since nothing ever will induce any company of actors to condescend to the fetters of metre; but the question was raised for us by the pretty Mrs. F. B. Conway, who in her delivery of her part as Olga, constantly betrayed a decided decasyllabic tendency. But, be this as it may, the piece is certainly written in a very gorgeous and imposing vein. All the characters walk on and off like Leonora in Miss Edgeworth's novel, "their heads a little higher than usual." The mere humanity of the play seems constantly tending upward, and reminds one of an anchored balloon uneasily tugging at its chain. The plot is all that Scribe, the ingenious, could make it, with an unlimited supply of Tartars, couriers, spies, despots, roués and empresses at his command; and is really interesting in spite of the extraordinary and fatiguing magnificence of the text. The cast of such a play is hardly a fair test of a new company, and Miss Davenport, in her rôle of the Czarina, was the only performer who really developed any special peculiarities of style. This lady has a fine voice, an evident familiarity with stage business, a graceful carriage, and all the elements essential to success in that very declamatory and demonstrative school to which she chooses to belong. She infused her own spirit into her supporters, but the full house seemed to be more gratified with the points which the Czarina made than with the ensemble of the performance.

The orchestra was, perhaps, a trifle Turkish and not a trifle tardy, but the general arrangements of the house were extremely creditable to the skill and care of the management. For an opening night is a sure trial, of which the incurious public can form but a slight notion when it surveys the results from its easy benches. We shall look forward with interest to the development of this new enterprise, and wish it all the success that we are sure its conductors will labor to deserve. As a proof of our good-will, let us urge it upon the jeune premier, Mr. Reynolds, who last night played the Roué à la Régence in a powdered peruke, with whiskers and moustaches, that the razor of earthly barbers is to the true actor what the razor-bridge of Paradise is to the true believers of Islam.

The actor who will not sacrifice Broadway to the stage, and his own mirror to the mirror he attempts to hold up to his audience, can never reach the first rank in this profession, be his natural capacities what they may.

At Wallack's Theatre Mr. Wallack morlized "Melancholy Jaques," and Mr. Walcot played the "Motley Fool in the Forest," to a crowded and delighted house.

At the French Theatre, the Directors, Messrs. Widdows & Sage favored the public with an opportunity of showing its appreciation of their services, and with two amusing Vaudevilles, one Le Piano de Berthe, a most vivacious and graceful trifle; the other, Un Scandale à New-York, a folié partié enough to bear repetition, and which could only be sketched into criticism by a man capable of decanting champagne, which man we are not. To-night that admirable study of manners Le Gender de M. Poirier will fill the house again.

And to-night Mrs. Emily Lendenner will, we trust, find herself surrounded by a crowded and sympathizing audience at her last dramatic reading, preparatory to her departure for Europe. This accomplished lady, who has purveyed so much pleasure to so many audiences in all parts of the country, has suffered the most grievous affliction in the loss of her two sons, and is now ordered by her physician to seek relief for body and mind in the South of Europe. All who go to hear her to-night will wish her God-speed in a practical way.

The Woman who lives Without Eating.—A correspondent at Glen's Falls, noticing our recent paragraph concerning the detection of the imposture said to be practiced by Mrs. Hays who pretends to live without eating, denies the fact of such detection. He says that the Committee appointed to investigate the matter instituted a watch of six persons, who were to continue twenty-one days unless sooner convinced of the imposture. The bed on which she lay was moved to the centre of the room and the clothing carefully examined. No person but the Committee and Mr. Hays were allowed to go into the room and the latter not within ten feet of the bed. On the fourteenth day a piece of a single cracker was found in the bed, and this is the only indication of any kind that appeared to show the presence or use of food. Our correspondent states that the member of the Committee who found the cracker was the near relative of a man who had offered to bet $500 that the whole thing was an imposition. The investigation, therefore, seems to settle nothing.

Mr. John Denio, a veteran journalist, died at Albion, N. Y., March 30. He published a paper in Vermont in 1800, afterwards conducted the Gazette at Greenfield, Mass., and was engaged in other newspaper enterprises.

[illegible] Match at Hoyt's Theatre. [illegible] exciting exhibition of the sweet, in the [illegible] ing, took place at Hoyt's Theatre last ev[ening] [illegible] in which attracted being the announcement [that] [illegible] dling-stakes Champions of the Ring [illegible] and Heenan, would take part in the pe[rformance]. The proceeds were for the benefit [of] [illegible] Hammond, and the price of admission [was] fixed at one dollar. The house was filled [to] [illegible] fullness, and a great many of the more enthusi[astic] occupied places on the stage. Rosenberg's [band] was engaged for the occasion, and [was] to beguile the time and promote good [feeling]. The principal sparring, and that which received the greatest amount of applause, was between [Tom] and Johnny Aaron, Swaggers and Jemmy Welch, Weeks, of Boston, and Jem Connor, Jerry [Donovan] (Genesia Boy) and Jerry Mesmerizer. The second of the latter pair upon the stage elicited tremendous applause. They were dressed in ring costume during their set-to, which was a lively one, [and] had the most friendly feeling was exhibited by [them] and their numerous friends in all portions of the house. The best of order prevailed from the [beginning] to the close of the exhibition, which, [although] drawn crowd, [illegible] have occasioned a considerable sum to the [fund] for whose it was gotten up.

Unwelcome Visitation of Spirits.—[illegible] Wilson, an unmarried shoemaker, occupies a [room] in the attic, at No. 261 Bowery, which looks out upon the Quaker burying-ground in that vicinity. About 10 o'clock in the evening—so Mr. Wilson alleges—the spirits commence their nocturnal visits. They assume all sorts of shapes, utter all sorts of noises, and perform all sorts of pranks. There are thumps on the wall, on the floor, and on the ceiling, on tables and under tables. There is the music of birds, bands, and of street-organs. He is pulled by the nose, by the toes and by the eye-lashes. The visitors remain until daylight and then depart. For seven weeks—so Mr. Wilson further alleges—he has suffered from these nightly visits. Wasted almost to a shadow from want of sleep, he was compelled yesterday to ask that two policemen might be sent to spend a few nights with him in his lofty attic, in hope that their presence might prevent the further intrusion of his unwelcome visitants. Sergeant Lefferts, to whom the application was made, advised him to apply to a certain leading Spiritualist in the City, which suggestion was immediately complied with, but with what result is not yet known.

Man Found Drowned.—The Coroner was yesterday called to hold an Inquest upon the body of a man found floating in the North River, near King-street. Thomas Watson, of No. 257 Canal-street, positively identified the deceased as Mike Finnegan, who came to this country a short time since, in the same ship with him. Features, the cut of the whiskers, the formation of teeth, and a peculiar projection of the under jaw, made him positive in the identification of his friend. Several others testified with equal positiveness that the deceased was Patrick Mahon, who had recently been a fireman on a Southern steamer, given to occasional excessive drinking, who had not been seen for several days, and who, when last seen, was wandering about the docks near King-street in an inebriated condition. The testimony in favor of the body being that of the missing fireman was the strongest, and a verdict of accidental drowning was rendered, and the body was given up for interment.

Ticket Swindling.—The departure of the California steamer to-day kept the ticket swindlers busily at work yesterday. An announcement by the outside agents that all the tickets had been sold caused the prices to go up. Large sums were paid even for steerage tickets. Several persons who had been persuaded to pay extravagant charges complained of the extortion at the City Hall Police Court, but they could obtain no redress, as the magistrate has no power to regulate the price of the tickets. Patrick McDonald, who keeps an office at the corner of Liberty and Greenwich streets, was, however, compelled to give $3,000 bail to answer a charge of swindling three Germans of Pittsburgh, Penn., named Spelman, Schmidt and Gaus, by refusing to let them have tickets they had already bargained for until a bonus of $25 on each was paid.

Whig General Committee.—This Committee held their regular monthly meeting last evening at Thorp's Hotel, Broadway. Mr. Ketchum presided. Vacancies in the different Wards were filled. The Committee reported that they had received encouraging communications from all sections of the country in reply to their circular. Hon. Walter Preston had expressed much enthusiasm in regard to the prospects of the Whig cause in Virginia. A letter from Hon. Edward Bates, of Missouri, was read, after which Mr. Ketchum made some remarks in reference to the comments of the Press of the country upon the speech of Ex-Gov. Hunt. Mr. Forshay, of the Eighth, and G. C. Fisher of the Tenth Wards were placed upon the roll. The Committee then adjourned.

Meeting of House Painters.—A movement was inaugurated last evening by the House Painters to secure an advance upon their present pay $1 75 per diem, to which it was reduced at the time of the panic, fifteen months ago. A meeting was held at the Central House, in Stuyvesant-street, over which Daniel Hogan presided. It was agreed that the demand of increased pay—$2 per diem being the amount agreed upon—should be formally made at each shop in the City, and the result reported at a subsequent meeting. The impression was that most of the employers would accede to the demand at once. A Committee was appointed to arrange for a future meeting, and an adjournment took place, subject to their call.

Steuben Central Committee.—At the meeting of the New-York Steuben Central Committee on Sunday afternoon, the new constitution was unanimously adopted. Mr. Kimm, after five ballots, was elected Vice-President and took his seat. It was resolved to erect a monument to General Steuben, but of what material it shall be constructed or where it shall be placed was not determined. These points will be decided at the general Convention of Delegates from the different Associations, which meets at the time of the annual Steuben Festival in July or August. The funds of the Association amount to $1,205, nearly all of which is in bank.

Deserters from Governor's Island.—At a late hour on Sunday evening, the pilot of one of the Fulton Ferry boats discovered a raft floating in the stream, and two men upon it. The men were picked up, when they told a long and doleful story about being shipwrecked. This statement was so ridiculous that it was deemed advisable to hand them over to the police. They proved to be two deserters from Governor's Island, named Henry Canon and Charles McDonald, and were yesterday sent back to the Island.

Meeting of the Metal Roofers.—A meeting of the metal-roofers was called for last evening, at Military Hall. Owing to some mistake the room had not been engaged and a dancing party had the possession of it. It was resolved to call another meeting, the object being to secure an advance upon the present pay.

The Weather.—Yesterday it commenced blowing from the westward during the forenoon, and increased almost to a gale during the day. Nearly all the vessels in the North River dragged their anchors. No damage was done.

Short Measure.—Officer Cox arrested Chas. Walsh, in Twenty-fourth-street, Saturday, for using as a half-peck measure, a measure which, when properly tested, was found to contain but three quarts or thereabouts. Walsh was brought before Marshal Stephens, at the Mayor's Office, and his license was revoked.

Decision in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—April 4.
Before Judge Betts.

COLLISION—DARKNESS—UNAVOIDABLE ACCIDENT.

The Alliance Insurance Company vs. The Brig Morning Light.—This was an action to recover the damages occasioned to the schooner Jerry Fowler by a collision with the Morning Light, which occurred on August 9, 1856, just about daybreak, near Martha's Vineyard. Both vessels had been going eastward through the sound, the brig in the rear but gaining on the schooner, and both were on the starboard tack. The night was dark and rainy, and about 4 A. M. the Jerry Fowler undertook to tack; her master thinking her so near the Cutterhunk Shoals as to render it proper to change her course; and while tacking she was run into by the Morning Light. The libellants having paid the loss to the owners of the schooner, now sue to recover it back. The testimony as to the darkness was conflicting.

Held by the Court—That the evidence shows a case of the unavoidable accident between the two vessels, or, if there was fault, it was one common to both, arising from the obscurity of the weather and want of extreme vigilance on both vessels, and the uncertainty, from that cause, as to what was the proper course for either to pursue; that each party must therefore be left to bear his own loss.

Libel dismissed. Question of costs reserved. For libellants, Messrs. Benedict, Burr & Benedict: for claimants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean & Donohue, and Mr. Morton.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—April 4.
Before Judge Betts.

The April Term of this Court was opened this morning by Judge Betts. On calling the Jury panel, only ten Jurors out of the thirty-six summoned answered to their names, and seven of these ten were excused, and a new panel was accordingly summoned for to-morrow.

George Drew and Thomas Campbell, indicted for larceny on board the ship Liverpool, were arraigned and pleaded guilty, and were remanded for sentence.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—April 4.
Before Justice Ingraham

DECISION IN THE SCHUYLER CASE.

The New-York and New-Haven Company vs. Schuyler and others.—The demurrer argued in this case contains the same grounds of demurrer as were presented to the Court in the demurrer of the defendant Cross. Upon the argument of that demurrer, the Judge, at Special Term, sustained the demurrer, and upon appeal to the General Term, the judgment below was affirmed. When the case was submitted to the Court of Appeals, the judgments below were reversed. I conceive that in the opinions delivered on that occasion, the Court appeared to have decided solely the question of multifariousness which was much pressed before all the Courts, but it is impossible for me to say that they did not consider the other points submitted to them as stated in the demurrer. On the contrary, I am bound to suppose that they would not have reversed a judgment in the defendant's favor on the demurrer, although the Court might have erred on the question of misjoinder of different causes of action, if they had not been satisfied that the complaint contained a good cause of action against the defendant Cross. It would be improper for a Judge of this Court, in reference to a decision of the Court of Appeals, to say that because certain points taken in a demurrer had not been sufficiently argued before that Court, or noticed by the Justice delivering the opinion there, he would decide adversely to that decision, and send the case up again for that Court to have the case more fully argued, and to compel them again to review those questions with more care. It is our duty to recognize and to follow the decisions of that Court, and on all questions which have been presented to that Court we shall adopt their decisions as binding and conclusive.

I feel, therefore, constrained to decide that upon the questions presented by their demurrers in the case of Chappel and of Carpenter, and most of the questions presented by the other demurrers, I can only follow the decision of the Court of Appeals, by holding that the complaint contains a sufficient cause of action, and none of those grounds are sufficient to warrant a judgment in the defendants' favor.

The other grounds taken by the demurrers I do not, on examination, think to be well founded.

An objection is taken in some of the demurrers to the defect of parties defendants, in that the holders of the real estate are not made parties. I see no necessity to make such persons defendants. The action is not commenced to interfere with their stock. They are not required to prove the validity of the stock held by them, as it is admitted by the plaintiffs, and an averment in the complaint that they hold the real stock, making them defendants on that account, would be objectionable as showing no cause of action against them.

It in the progress of the cause any other person should be found to hold the false stock, the plaintiffs can be required to make them defendants, but not for the cause that they hold the real stock of the Company.

Another ground of demurrer stated on behalf of the Mechanics' Bank is, that the action brought by them, and which is sought to be sustained in this action, was brought in another Court, and that the remedy should be in that Court.

Conceding that rule to be proper if the Bank were the only defendants, it does not apply here. On examining the complaint, it will be seen that some of the actions are brought in this Court and some in the Superior Court. It would be proper in such cases, where all the defendants must be included in one action, to bring such action in either Court, and from the necessity of the case either Court could enjoin the judgments pending in both Courts. Any other rule would enable one defendant to defeat the whole proceeding.

The case of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Kent County vs. The Butchers' and Drovers' Bank (16 New-York Rep., p. 125) is relied upon as showing that the Court of Appeals, by that decision, have thrown so much doubt over the decision made in this case on the demurrer of Cross, as to justify us in refusing to regard that decision as an authority in the plaintiff's favor. There is, between that case and the present one, a marked distinction, viz.: That the Court there thought the check sued upon was negotiable, and the rules, as applicable to negotiable paper, would not be applicable to certificates of stock in an incorporated company.

A check duly certified by the clerk who was authorized to certify checks, when the money was in the Bank, to the credit of the drawer, was held to create a liability against the Bank, even if so certified without funds to meet it. In such a case, however, there is a distinction between certifying a check to be good and issuing a false certificate for stock which does not exist and cannot be created; and Seaden, J., in his opinion, draws the distinction between the Mechanics' Bank case and the one then under consideration, and says, "they are plainly distinguishable from the present case," because the document upon which the question arose was not negotiable. See also the opinion of Chief-Justice Denio in the same case, in 4 Kernan, 623.

So far, then, as the plaintiffs seek to obtain a judgment declaring the false stock issued by Schuyler to be of no value, and the certificate to be void, I must, under the decision in the case of Cross, hold the complaint to be sufficient.

That such certificates cannot be recognized as valid and representing true stock, is, I think, clear. It is conceded that the Company, by its board of directors, could not create such stock, nor in any way give it validity, and it cannot be pretended that an agent can be authorized to do what his principal had no power to do. But it does not follow that persons who have suffered from the acts of an agent, whether from negligence or fraud, may not obtain the principal redress for the injuries sustained in consequence thereof. How that redress is to be obtained need not be inquired into here, nor to whom the principal is responsible. Those questions must naturally arise upon the trial of the cause depending upon the facts applicable to each particular case, and the examination of each case, which will necessarily be made, would seem to present the great difficulty which will arise upon the trial of this cause against all the defendants.

The Court of Appeals have, however, contrary to the decision of this Court heretofore expressed, held that the action against all the defendants was properly brought, and suggested the propriety of one trial for all. To that decision I must yield my opinion, whatever it may be.

Judgment for the plaintiff upon the demurrers, with leave to the defendants to answer on payment of costs.

Before Justice Sutherland.

John B. Borst vs. George D. Baldwin.—This case came up on demurrer to the complaint on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

The fact stated in the complaint was in substance as follows:

The plaintiff had a claim, arising on contract, against the defendant and one Adams, who were copartners under the firm name of Adams & Baldwin, as bank note engravers, for $3 000. This claim the plaintiff assigned to one John C. Aosman.

Aosman, as assignee, brought an action in the Supreme Court on the claim against Adams & Baldwin. Baldwin proposed a settlement of the suit; and it was settled, by judgment being permitted to be entered up against the defendants in the action for $1,361 21, upon the conditions of a written agreement entered into between the parties. By this agreement, Aosman stipulated to enforce the collection of the judgment out of the separate property of Adams only, and to use all lawful means, by execution and supplemental proceedings, to enforce the collection of the judgment out of the property of Adams; and Baldwin agreed to pay Aosman, in bank note engraving and printing on demand, a sum not exceeding $680 62, or any deficiency less than that sum, which could not be collected out of Adams; and on payment of such deficiency, not exceeding $680 62, Baldwin was to be released from the judgment.

The complaint alleged also that this settlement, and the agreement under which the judgment was entered, were all brought about by the fraud of Baldwin, setting out facts and circumstances, and alleged false representations of Baldwin, to show the fraud; that Adams was insolvent, and Baldwin knew it; that Baldwin was and is responsible, and that the claim could have been, and could now, be collected of him. It also showed that, before the commencement of this action, Aosman, for a valuable consideration, assigned the judgment against Adams and Baldwin to the plaintiff.

On these facts, the plaintiff asked that the stipulation or agreement might be set aside.

Bosworth, J., after stating the facts: The question, says he, only question raised by the demurrer is, whether the plaintiff, as the assignee of the judgment, conceding Aosman's right on the discovery of the fraud to bring this action and ask for the relief asked for by the plaintiff, can bring the action or has any right to such relief.

Aosman, on his discovery of the fraud, could have considered the judgment void or voidable, and could have instituted an action or proceedings to set aside the stipulation and judgment and have them declared void on the ground of the fraud, or he could affirm the judgment and stipulation and hold Baldwin personally responsible in an action for the deceit or fraud.

Aosman's assignment of the judgment to the plaintiff was an affirmance of the judgment by Aosman, and may have left in him the action or right of action, against Baldwin for the fraud, but the assignment of the judgment could not carry with it this right of action for the fraud; nor was it susceptible of assignment so as to give the assignee a right of action in his own name. (Zabriskie vs. Smith, 3 Kernan 322.

The plaintiff took the judgment with knowledge of the stipulation restricting its operation, and must be presumed to have taken it subject to the stipulation, and in fact, to have taken the stipulation as a part of the judgment; and it would be very extraordinary if it could be presumed that the plaintiff took under the assignment of the judgment a right, at the same time and by the same assignment, to attack and repudiate the judgment.

In my opinion the complaint shows no cause of action in the plaintiff, and the defendant must have judgment on the demurrer, with costs.

L. H. Van Shaick for plaintiff; Wm. B. Leeds for defendant.

Robert Roberts vs. Lorenzo A. Sykes.—Judgment for defendants with costs. (See opinion.)

SUPERIOR COURT—Trial Term.
Before the Hon. Justice Slosson.

Louis Deitz vs. Edmund Coffin, et al.—This action is brought to recover $23 310 08 damages. It arises out of the failure of the firm of Coffin & Haydock, formerly commission merchants of this City. The plaintiff avers that he consigned to the firm of Coffin & Haydock goods to the amount of over $60,000 upon the agreement that the defendants were not to sell them for less than invoice prices. That advances were made on the goods to the amount of about $40,000 leaving still due thereon the amount claimed in this action. That Coffin & Haydock failed and assigned to Mr. Edwin J. Brown, one of the defendants, who sold the consignments at auction at much below invoice prices. The defendants deny that there was any agreement to sell for invoice prices, and aver that the advances made, together with commissions, &c., exceed the amount received on the sale of the goods. The case is still on. W. C. Hornfager for plaintiff; F. E. Mather for defendants.

COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.
Before Judge Davies

On Thursday last, with the sentence of James Stephens, by Judge Roosevelt, this Court adjourned sine die. Yesterday morning it was reopened by Judge Davies, for the trial of nine men, severally indicted for murder. John Glass, James Glass, his brother, James Higgins, James Loftus and John Quinlan, indicted for the murder of William Decker, in Elm-street; Jean Bosquet, who killed the boy Martino de Santis in Canal-street, and afterwards in the Tombs stabbed the fellow-occupant of his cell fourteen times with a fork; Quimbo Appo, the Chinaman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Fletcher; Michael Fynn, charged with the murder of Mr. Cutting in Roosevelt-street; and Thomas Murphy, for wife-murder, were brought into Court, and, on the motion of the District-Attorney, formally handed over to the Sheriff for trial at a future day. It was arranged that an inquiry should be made by competent medical men into the state of Jean Bosquet's mental condition, it being generally conceded that he is insane. In personal appearance he is more revolting, probably, than any other living man:—indeed, we have seen handsomer orang-outangs. The counsel assigned him by the Court states, that in his opinion, the hideousness of his countenance has driven him to insanity, but as the countenance is the index of the mind, Lavater, with the physiognomists and physiologists, will decide against Mr. Anthon. Still, of Bosquet's incapacity to act as a rational being there can be no dispute, and undoubtedly he will be taken care of on Blackwell's Island, as a dangerous human biped.

The trial of John and James Glass, Higgins, Loftus, and Quinlan, having been set down for the 18th inst., the Court adjourned to Monday next the 11th, when either of the other cases that may be ready, will be taken up.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.
Before the Hon. Recorder Barnard.

Yesterday was the opening day of the April term. As usual, on the first day, there was not a quorum of Grand Jurors. The Petit Jury appeared, and such as were not excused (and the Recorder excuses no one without a medical certificate of incapacity to attend) will commence duty to-day. It being the first day of the term, and the Court of Oyer and Terminer being likewise in session, only two cases were ready for trial. If these had gone to a Jury, they would have occupied the entire day; but both prisoners pleaded guilty. John Mansfield, indicted for burglary, pleaded guilty to an attempt to commit burglary in the third degree, and was remanded for sentence. Michael Kelly, indicted for grand larceny pleaded guilty to petit larceny and was sent, being a mere lad, for six months to the Penitentiary.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

Will of Henry Pierson.—Henry Pierson shipped as a seaman on a voyage to China and back to the port of New York. He died at sea, on the 6th of March last, while on the return passage from Shanghae to New York. On the 22d of February he made a verbal statement of his wishes as to the disposal of his property and effects, in the presence of three of his shipmates. Proof of his declaration was now offered, before the Surrogate, as being a nuncupative will.

The three seamen who were present at the time were all examined as witnesses. They all gave testimony to the same effect, to wit: That Pierson wished all his property to go to the children of Thomas Ross, deceased. It was also shown that Ross left two children, Anna and Mary Louisa—both residing in the City of New-York—one being 14, and the other 16 years of age.

The Surrogate directed the will to be admitted to probate; that letters of guardianship be issued to the two legatees; and that the guardian take out letters of administration, with the will annexed.

COURT OF APPEALS—April 2.

Nos. 153, 182 and 173—Struck off.

No. 59—Stewart vs. Smith. Argued. Mr. G. W. Stevens, counsel for appellant; Mr. C. B. Hart, counsel for respondent.

No. 40½—Kimberly vs. Patchin. Argued. Mr. J. H. Reynolds, counsel for appellant; Mr. J. L. Talcott, counsel for respondent.

No. 84—Reserved for April 7.

HUMAN REMAINS FOUND AT ALBANY IN A SOAP-BOX—A MYSTERY.—The Albany Argus and Atlas, April 4, says: "There is some slight ground for believing that the remains of a female which were discovered at the office of the Hudson River Railroad in this city, in a soap-box, mangled and in a decayed state, are those of Mrs. Brannan, wife of Captain B. of the United States Army, who, at the time of her disappearance, resided on Staten Island. She has been missing since the 20th of July last, and was last seen upon the Island, and is supposed to have been murdered. The remains were shipped from New-York, as extra baggage, and directed to H. Ripps, Franklin, Ind. On the opposite side of the card containing these directions, was the following, printed: 'From W. S. Barnes, No. 118 and 120 Third-avenue, corner of Fourteenth-street New-York.' It is said that Mrs. B. has friends residing near this store, and was in the habit of frequently visiting them. She is supposed to have been waylaid at night and murdered in that vicinity. Against this theory, however, is the fact that the special police who have so long been searching for the missing lady, traced her back from New-York to Staten Island on the evening of her disappearance. We are assured that nothing will be left undone to clear up the mystery that surrounds the finding of these remains. That some foul play is connected with the matter, is argued from the fact that they have not been claimed, although so much publicity has been given to their detention here."

GOV. CHASE AND THE OHIO SENATE.—We published, a day or two since, the resolutions adopted by the Senate of Ohio, calling upon Gov. Chase, in terms decidedly disrespectful, for an explanation of his course in withholding information of the recent frauds upon the State Treasury. The Governor replies, under date of March 30, stating that he has no information beyond that already communicated; and adds the following deserved rebuke:

"The latter clause of the first resolution, and the whole of the second, are expressed in language, which, I am sure, your honorable body will, upon reflection, regard as unsuited to intercourse between the Senate and the Executive. The respect due to the people who have intrusted to me the Chief Magistracy of the State must forbid any reply to either.

(Signed) S. P. CHASE."

WRECKING AND INSURANCE.—Judge Marvin, of the United States District Court at Key West, estimates the value of the ships and cargoes that pass into and out of the Gulf of Florida, by the southern coast of Florida, at between three and four hundred millions of dollars annually. During the ten years from 1648 to 1857 inclusive, the Judge says, four hundred and ninety nine vessels wrecked, or in distress, have been carried into Key West, valued at $16,568,-497; their expenses, including salvage, wharfage, storage, duties, repairs, refitting and all other charges, are computed at $2,115,339—the salvage alone amounting to $1,158,919.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS.—The Grand Jury recently discharged in the Court of Over and Terminer, made a presentment which was found on file yesterday. They visited the County buildings in Flatbush, and found them in a commendable condition as to cleanliness and the health of the inmates, except the nursery. Of this institution, where there are hundreds of worse than orphan children, the Grand Inquest says: "In this building there is a very great want of proper ventilation; it appears to be badly constructed, the sinks being placed on the same floor with the children, and throughout there appears a want of general superintendence. The children themselves present an unhealthy appearance; almost all are affected with sores most pale, emaciated and sad. Mortality is very great among them, and from appearances is likely to continue unless the defect, whatever it may be, is immediately remedied and entirely eradicated from the institution." This is all the Grand Jury have to say about the subject. They also visited the "Truant Home," and found there 99 children. The institution is well managed, but they present the building as entirely unfit for the purpose for which it is used, and recommend to the proper authorities that other accommodations be provided.

MUNICIPAL.

Board of Aldermen.

President McSPEDON and Aldermen ADAMS and GWENN were the only members of the Board present when the hour of meeting arrived yesterday, and the Board was declared adjourned for want of a quorum. The day for the next meeting is not fixed; the Board will meet again at the call of the President.

Board of Councilmen.

COOPER INSTITUTE—THE CONTESTED ELECTION—ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATORY—BROOKLYN WATER CELEBRATION.

The Board met last evening, at the usual hour. It was determined, by the adoption of a resolution to that effect, to raise the flags on the City Hall on Henry Clay's Birthday, the 12th inst. Joel W. Mason, petitioned for an appropriation of $100 as remuneration for a horse which was killed by falling in a "man hole" in Centre-street. Referred to Committee on Finance. The stand-holders in the new Jefferson Market petitioned to have said market lighted with gas. Referred to Committee on Markets. Councilman CRAFT offered a resolution directing the Street Commissioner to have the house of Hose Company No. 13 repaired, at an expense not to exceed $500. Referred to the Committee on Fire Department.

Among the papers from the Board of Aldermen was a resolution asking the Councilmen to concur with them in their protest against the adoption of the amended City Charter now before the Legislature. After a brief discussion, the whole subject was laid on the table.

A communication was received from the Mayor, inclosing a memorial of the Chamber of Commerce asking for the grant of a piece of land on the Battery, whereon to erect a time and weather Observatory for the promotion of the interests of commerce, as well as for astronomical and meteorological purposes. The paper was referred to the Committee on Lands and Places.

The Mayor also transmitted an invitation from the Brooklyn authorities, asking the Common Council and other members of the New-York City Government to participate in the contemplated celebration of the introduction of water into their city. The invitation was accepted.

A third communication from the Mayor, transmitted a statement of the receipts and disbursements of the Peter Cooper Institute from May 1, 1858, to Jan. 1, 1859, in compliance with the charter of that institute. The rent of the hall has brought in $2,910, the stores of the ground story $167 23, the offices on the second story $1,001 52. Sundry other receipts have amounted to $5 05, $1,701 70 have been paid for help, $887 22 for furnishing the Institute. Fuel and gas have cost $337 66. Sundry other expenses have amounted to $131,89, showing a balance in the treasury of $625 53.

Mr. Beebe, the Superintendent, in his accompanying statement, complains bitterly of the fish markets in front of the building, and says a large number of the stores remain unoccupied because of this nuisance alone. Those which are rented bring merely nominal amounts into the Treasury. In conclusion, he says "permit me to state, as I am authorized to form a schedule furnished by Mr. Cooper, that the building, exclusive of the ground, has already involved an outlay of $427,956 72." The present value of the ground on which the building stands, is $200,000, making the total value of the property $627,956 72. The paper was ordered to be printed.

The reports of the Special Committee appointed to consider Mr. MCADAM's protest against Councilman FERAR's acting as a member of the Board came up for consideration. Both reports review the whole history of the election. The majority report, signed by Councilmen RHODES and BUCKLEY, claims that Councilman FERAR was elected by a majority of 19, and the minority report, signed by Councilman LAIMBEER, claims that Mr. MCADAM was elected by a majority of 91. Councilman LAIMBEER concludes his report with the following statements:

That MCADAM did agree with parties previous to the election for officers, or even (ere) it had been decided by the County Canvassers, that in the event of his being given his seat, to vote for the Democratic organization of the Board:

And also promised members of the Board, that although elected on the Republican ticket, he was, and had been always, a Democrat, and would vote with them on party questions. And that in the event of his being given his seat, he would be enabled to reimburse himself for the cost of his election.

These facts only presented for the purpose of showing how men can compromise themselves and the party who elected them to advocate right principles; he was elected as a Republican, and should have been willing to abide the result of the canvassers and the Select Committee, without making any such compromise to obtain his seat.

Your Committee, however, believe he was elected, and consequently cannot allow any personal or party feeling to influence him either to his injury or benefit, resting entirely as he does upon the facts and evidence of the case presented in this report and the annexed documents; all tending to show that he was justly elected, but that to pursued a course that your Committee could not, under any circumstances, indorse, or ever assent to.

And your Committee would further state, he believes it to be his duty to present the foregoing statements as a part of the matter belonging to the constituency of the Seventh Senatorial District of the City of New-York.

After the report had been read Councilman BUCKLEY asked that the subject might be postponed until the next meeting.

Councilman OTTARSON said it was evident why it was desired to postpone further considerations of the subject. Two seats on the Democratic side were vacant.

Councilman LENT said that if the minority report was correct in all the facts stated; if it were true Mr. MCADAM had pledged himself to vote with the Democrats in the organization of the Board, he did not think he would be doing justice to the Republicans of the Ward which Mr. MCADAM claimed it was his right to represent, as they voted for him with the understanding that he was a faithful exponent of their principles. A party vote, if strictly enforced, might oblige him to vote for Mr. MCADAM.

Councilman LAIMBEER vouched for the truth of his report in every particular.

Councilman RHODES spoke at considerable length, defending the accuracy of the majority report.

Finally the majority report was rejected, by a vote of 11 to 10. The vote then recurred on the adoption of the minority report, which was lost by a tie vote of 10 to 10. The whole subject was then indefinitely postponed, and the Board adjourned amid considerable confusion, until 6 P. M., Wednesday, it being stated that an important communication was to come in from the Mayor.

After adjournment a very exciting conversation sprung up between Mr. MCADAM and some of the members of the Board. Councilman LAIMBEER strongly asserted the accuracy of every statement made, notwithstanding Mr. MCADAM's denial. President CORNELL charged Mr. MCA. with having barganed with him previous to the organization of the Board with reference to voting for him as President, in case he (Mr. MCA.) should be declared elected. General gentlemen wanted Mr. CORNELL to inform them what price he offered for the expected vote, but that he said was a personal matter.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday directed that the bills of the New-York Gas Company, amounting to $200 76, for gas furnished the Surrogate's Office, Recorder's Office, and new Court House to Feb. 1, 1859, and the bills of Keyser & Co., amounting to $626 44, for repairs in the offices of the Register, Court of Common Pleas and County Clerk, be paid.

A resolution fixing the salary of the keeper of Harlem Bridge at $700 per annum, and directing that the bills of John S. Poole, for services as keeper of that bridge, amounting to $349 98, be paid, was adopted.

The report of the Committee on County Officers in favor of paying the bill of Norman McLeod, amounting to $686 26, for supplies for the County Jail for the month of January, and the bill of the same person for the supplies for February, amounting to $491 60, was adopted.

The Committee on County Officers presented a report, setting forth that their former report in favor of paying the bill of Wm. Jay Haskett, amounting to $250 for services as Excise Commissioner and officer, which was referred back to the Committee, was correct. It was directed that the bill be paid, and the Board adjourned to April 18.

Police Reports.

A WICKED YOUTH AND A FOOLISH DAUGHTER.—Some time since Charles Fairchilds, a young man about nineteen, formed the acquaintance of Louisa March, a flaxen-haired and rosy-cheeked girl, fourteen years old. The father of Louisa is the proprietor of a shoe-store in Hudson-street, and his daughter was employed as an assistant to wait on customers. The attentions of young Fairchilds to Louisa became known to her father, and the latter forbade his visiting the store or their residence. The unfavorable character given of Fairchilds was the cause of this edict. The injunction only made matters worse. At length Fairchilds induced Louisa to run away from home, and promised to go with her to a minister and get married at once. Instead of fulfilling his promise, Fairchilds took her to the disreputable house No. 54 Leonard-street, and there effected her ruin. He pretended that his aunt and her daughters lived in the house, but Louisa was not long in discovering the true character of the place. Fairchilds insisted upon her pursuing a similar course of life with the other female occupants. This proposition she could not succeed to, but managed during the day, in the absence of Fairchilds, to make her escape. Her second night from home she passed in Washington Square Ground. For forty-eight hours she did not taste a mouthful of food. At length she made known her situation to a female friend, who afforded her shelter for five days, after the expiration of which she ventured to return home. Happily for herself she was kindly received. A complaint of seduction and abduction was preferred by her father, however, against Fairchilds. Meantime the accused had got into a fight with another fast youth, and had been sentenced to the City Prison for thirty days, where he is still confined. An examination on the charge of abduction and seduction was commenced, yesterday, before Justice KELLY, at the Jefferson Police Court. The girl Louisa gave her testimony, setting forth the above facts. The examination will be resumed on Thursday.

ATTEMPTED MURDER FOR DOMESTIC WRONG.—About 8½ o'clock, last evening, Samuel McKee, a stage-driver, entered the restaurant No. 343 Spring-street, kept by S. Cooper, and commenced abusing the proprietor, and charging him with having illicit intercourse with his (McKee's) wife. After a dispute of some length, it is alleged that McKee uttered a threat to have the life of Cooper, and immediately drew a double-barreled pistol, and was about presenting it at Cooper when the latter sprang upon him, and a scuffle ensued for the possession of the weapon, which ended by Cooper wresting it from McKee. The noise attending the affair drew Officer Tyler, of the Eighth Ward, to the spot, and he took McKee into custody and conveyed him to the Station-house. Cooper appeared and preferred a charge of assault, which was all he said. McKee made a statement to the effect that he was convinced that Cooper had taken improper liberties with his wife, and that he intended to kill him. Cooper did not deny the charge. On searching McKee, a slung-shot was found in his pocket.

ANOTHER NEW COUNTERFEIT.—Counterfeit fives on the Commercial Bank of Troy made their appearance in this City yesterday. They are imitations of the genuine and well executed. The vignette is a representation of laborers excavating for a railroad. On the right is the State coat of arms, and on the left the picture of a man carrying a bundle of corn. Two young men were arrested yesterday afternoon for passing one of the bills. They called, together with a third youth, at a liquor store in Avenue A, took drinks all around and offered one of the bills in payment. It was afterwards found that they had plenty of change, and had attempted to pass the same or similar bills elsewhere. An old counterfeit five on the Traders Bank of Boston was found upon them. One of the parties escaped, and those arrested gave their names as Francis McElroy and James Collins. They professed to belong to a glass factory in Flushing, and said that the spurious money they had was part proceeds of a contribution of their fellow workmen to assist one who was sick with consumption in going home to his friends in Boston. Justice BRENNAN committed them for examination.

EX-POLICEMAN WEYER ASSAULTS HIS WIFE.—Yesterday afternoon ex-ex-Policeman Weyer was passing the corner of Broadway and Canal streets, in company with the proprietress of the "Red, White and Blue" saloon, his wife met him and insisted upon his leaving his female companion and going home with her. Weyer immediately commenced an assault which was soon put an end to by the bystanders. Weyer made good his escape, but his wife proceeded to Essex Market Police Court and preferred a complaint of assault and battery against her husband. Justice BRENNAN issued a warrant for his arrest.

BURGLAR CAUGHT.—John Johnson, a young and sickly-looking man, was discovered yesterday morning by a private watchman, carrying a brass clock under his arm, and some brass castings. It was subsequently discovered that he had broken into the store of A. S. Barnes & Co., No. 51 John-street, and stolen the articles. Justice CONNOLLY committed him for trial.

STABBING A WOMAN.—Joseph Hackett was committed on Saturday morning, on a charge of stabbing Bridget Ward, of No. 70 West Eighteenth-street. Mrs. Ward received two scalp-wounds on the frontal bone, severing the temporal artery. Justice KELLY locked up the accused for trial.

STEAMER C. VANDERBILT.—This steamer, which at one time was considered as totally lost on Fisher's Island, has now been about one month on the ways at Hunter's Point. Her bottom was found to be badly chafed, but there was not a timber broken. New timbers are being put in to replace those found to be any way defeetive, and an entire new bottom will be put on. She is having new boilers made by MURPHY & Co., of the Fulton Iron Works, which will be done about the first of June, shortly after which the Vanderbilt will again take her old place on the line between New-York and Stonington—a better boat, no doubt, than she has been for the last five years. Captain FRANCE, who formerly commanded her, is now in command of the Skiddy, running to Albany.

BEAUTIES OF SPRING!—How refreshing it is to feel once more the balmy air of Spring, and to watch the beauties of nature gradually burst forth! A walk down Broadway will furnish you with one of the many beauties of the present season. It is KNOX's Spring Hat, which, for quality, gracefulness of style, and elegance of finish, cannot be excelled. People wonder at KNOX doing such a rushing business; but why should they? for his being now the only classical establishment in that part of the City, he of course controls the entire down-town trade. Call and examine his immense Spring stock of Hats, Caps, &c., at No. 212 Broadway, corner of Fulton street. Every article will bear inspection, and prove to be as good as it looks.

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

In Sub-Treasury	5,548,069	7,816,780	8,045,268

There is a fair increase in all the items of the present Bank Averages, as compared with last week. And the daily exchanges between the Banks through the Clearing House show a larger volume of transactions than for several weeks past. The Deposit line is also once more on the rise. The Loans continue to move up to the point from which they turned down early in February. The present increase is mainly with three or four large Banks that hold heavy interior Bank balances. The new week opens on a quiet market for Money, and rather higher terms for foreign bills for the Boston mail. The standard drawers on England are asking 109⅞, and more of the Southern Bank bills have been taken up at 109⅜. Francs are 5.12½; Bremen, 79⅛@79¼. The Sub-Treasury sent $200,000 in Gold coin to Boston to-day. The net disbursements over the receipts, exclusive of this item, is $24,000. The balance this afternoon is down to $7,593,524. The Customs to-day are $122,000.

The Stock Market is lower by ⅛ ℔ cent. on New-York Central, which sold at 76 cash this afternoon, but is otherwise steady, and on the State Stocks firm and higher than on Saturday. Missouris sold largely at 87⅜@87½@88 ℔ cent., the closing bid 87⅞ as against 87½ on Saturday and 86½ last Monday. Tennessees brought 93 ℔ cent. and are scarce. Virginias, 98; Californias up to 85 which is a full recovery from the recent 4 ℔ cent. fall on the discovery of the irregular issue of $22 000. Illinois Interes Bonds sold as high as 104½ ℔ cent. United States fives of 1874 are ⅛ weaker, selling at 104⅜ and more offered at that rate. Panama shares were stronger and held at 118¼ ℔ cent. To-day the annual election of Directors was held and the old Board reelected, with the addition of Mr. JAMES T. SOUTTER to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation some months since of Mr. HENRY A. COIT now in Europe. The new Board is as follows: Messrs. David Hoadley, William H. Aspinwall, Edwin Bartlett, Henry Chauncey, Samuel W. Comstock, Edward Cunard, William Fellowes, Gouverneur Kemble, Theodore W. Riley, James T. Soutter, John Steward, Jr., Isaac Townsend, and William Whiteright, Jr. The competition in the California passenger trade is throwing a large additional business over the Panama Road at the uniform charge of $25 for every class of passengers. The Pacific Mail Company send two steamers this week, the St. Louis on the 5th, and the Moses Taylor on the 7th. The Vanderbilt line will send a steamer on the 11th. Pacific shares are 78¾@79. Harlem Preferred firm at 40½. Hudson River advanced to 33⅜@33¼. The March receipts are $175,773, notwithstanding the early opening of steamboat competition, against $179,423 in March, 1858. The Western shares were generally better and ¼@⅜ up from Saturday's sales. Galena brought 67½, Rock Island, 56½; Michigan Guaranteed, 40¾@⅞; Michigan Central, 50¼ and Toledo, 25½. The March receipts of the last named are $75,330, which is $1,330,000 gain on the last few days as previously estimated. Erie fourth mortgage and the Convertibles are weaker. The former sold as low as 53¼. The shares neglected. Illinois Construction Bonds 87½, ex-coupon, and the shares up to 68⅜@½ cash, and 68 seller's option. The general market, this afternoon, closed steady. The point of interest was New-York Central, which fell to the lowest point of last Summer, on the previous competition in rates of business. The force of the operators for the fall appears to have been diverted from the Western Stocks to Central, on the announcement of the Management last week of a determination to direct their business independent of the entangling alliances of the late St. Nicholas compact.

The Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago line earned $58,213 in the last ten days in March. The Michigan Central earnings for January, February and March are stated at $368,000, as against $335,000 estimated in advance by the management, while the expenses are $194,000, instead of $222,000, estimated.

Messrs. SEWELL, FERRIS & Co. quote Land Warrants to-day as follows:

Messrs. CARPENTER & VERMILYE, No. 44 Wall-street, offer on private sale $30,000 of the Newburgh, N. Y., 6 ℔ cent. Water Loan. See advertisement.

At the annual election of Directors and Officers of the Hanover Fire Insurance Company, to-day, the old Board was reelected and vacancies were filled. SAMUEL H. ROKENBAUGH, Esq., the former President, having resigned, the late Secretary, NORAS L. STONE, Esq., was unanimously elected President, and BENJAMIN S. WALCOTT, Jr., was chosen Secretary.
